dwelling sits upon the original, fieldstone foundation. The circa-1920 door, which occupies the center bay of the south (front) elevation and sections of the clapboard siding are intact. A concrete-block, exterior chimney is located on the west elevation.

Since the 1974 survey, the four-light, sliding, aluminum windows in the second story of each elevation have been replaced with six-light, sliding, vinyl windows. A second story has been added to the one-story, rear ell that extends from the north (rear) elevation. The second story of the ell, and portions of the first floor of the west, north, and east elevations have been sheathed in vinyl siding.

A grassy lawn stretches northward from the rear of the dwelling. Mature evergreen trees delineate the west and north sides of the property. A maple tree shades the south (front) elevation of the dwelling. The Lynn House (WA-I-097) sits to the west of the property, and a late-nineteenth-century dwelling, 21216 Twin Springs Drive (MD 804) is located to the east.

Overall, the dwelling stands in good condition.

Historical Narrative:

Property History

The property on Twin Springs Drive that contains the Wetzel House originated as part of a larger tract of land developed by John H. Hughes, William H. Fitzhugh, and his wife, Maria Fitzhugh. William Fitzhugh sold a five-acre portion of the property, including the log dwelling, to John B. Bachtel, trustee of wife Mary Ann's estate, for $76.50 in 1849. The property was described as "a certain tract of land adjoining Chewsville."

Bachtel sold a portion of the lot measuring one acre and thirty square perches to Nicholas Beard in 1864. The lot was slightly altered in the 1870s when the Western Maryland Railway Company constructed a line along the northern border of the property. This change created the current boundary of the lot, which lies between the Western Maryland Railroad tracks to the north and the road leading from Hagerstown to Smithburg (Twin Springs Drive/MD 804) to the south.

The lot is noted in the 1877 Atlas of Washington County as the house of "S.W. Beard" (Lake, Griffing, and Stevenson 1877: 43). Presumably, the inhabitant was Silas W. Beard, the son of Nicholas.

After the death of Nicholas Beard, the trustees of his estate, John W. Beard, Silas W. Beard and David Harp, sold the small lot to Benjamin Franklin Gallagher in 1886. Gallagher purchased the lot for $305 and quickly sold it that same year to Rose E. Harbaugh. Rose Harbaugh sold a small portion of the lot to Samuel K. Oswald et. al. in 1895 and willed the remainder to Preston H. Beard upon her death.

Preston Beard sold the property to Abba Gertrude Jones in 1927 for $1,000, in addition to an $800 mortgage. Two years later, in 1929, Jones sold the property to Cora A. Spessard. In 1952, Cora Spessard, unmarried, conveyed the property to Roy O. and Marguerite H. Sease for $1650.

The Seases sold the property to George E. and Catherine B. Wetzel in 1960. The Wetzels resided at 21214 Twin Springs Drive for over thirty years. Jane C. Wetzel, heir of Catherine Wetzel, sold the property to Joel D. Jones in 1998. Jones currently, in 2007, retains ownership of the property.

Log Dwellings

The Wetzel House is an example of an early nineteenth-century log dwelling. McAlester and McAlester note that many early, pre-railroad, log houses are commonly found in rural areas and are well-documented and thoroughly studied (McAlester 2002: 82).

The "Middle Tradition," which McAlester and McAlester attribute to the colonies that comprised present-day Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland, consisted largely of Germanic immigrants from heavily wooded areas of central and northern Europe. The settlers utilized local resources, including limestone in areas under laid with stone; brick, in areas of clay and shale; and logs virtually everywhere to construction their buildings. The use of log is indicative of the low cost and availability of "rough forest materials" (Noble 1984: 41). The Germanic immigrants introduced techniques of building with logs hewn square and then placed horizontally to make solid wooden walls. Various systems of carefully interlocking or notching the squared timbers helped to hold the massive structures together.

In the area that included present-day Washington County, Scotch-Irish and English pioneers joined the Germanic settlers and quickly adopted the log building techniques. This group of settlers modified the shape of the three-room, log house into the one-room deep linear plan with external chimney(s) that dominated the region (McAlester 2002: 82). Examples of early log architecture and German architectural influences are represented throughout Washington County, although many have been re-clad in brick, wood, aluminum, and vinyl siding.

Significance Evaluation:

The Wetzel House, located at 21214 Twin Springs Drive (MD 804) in Chewsville, Washington County, Maryland, is not eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. The dwelling represents a common architectural form found throughout Washington County and Maryland.

According to the National Register of Historic Places guidelines established by the National Park Service, the quality of significance in American history, architecture, archeology, engineering, and culture is present in districts, site, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association, and:

- A. that are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history;
- B. that are associated with lives of significant persons in our past;
- C. that embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components lack individual distinction; or
- D. that have yielded or may be likely to yield information important in history or prehistory (National Park Service 1997).

The Wetzel House, located at 21214 Twin Springs Drive (MD 804) is not eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion A. The dwelling is not associated with any events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of history.

The Wetzel House is not eligible under Criterion B as it has no known association with the lives of individuals of historical importance. Although the individuals who owned and inhabited the property were of families that contributed to the development of the area, the persons who lived in the house were not directly involved in any significant events or trends.

The Wetzel House is not eligible under Criterion C because the dwelling does not possess the architectural distinctiveness necessary to qualify it for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. The log dwelling, clad in exterior siding, represents a common architectural type and form found throughout Washington County and Maryland. Furthermore, the Wetzel House is not an exceptional or representative example of its form. The dwelling does not represent the work of a master, nor does it possess high artistic values.

The property was not evaluated for eligibility under Criterion D as part of the architectural survey and evaluation.

The Wetzel House possesses integrity of setting and location, retaining its location amongst early and mid-nineteenth-century dwellings on the north side of Twin Springs Drive (MD 804), adjacent to the roadway. The dwelling no longer retains integrity of design because the two-story, rear ell addition creates a rectangular footprint instead of the original, square form. The dwelling exhibits replacement exterior siding and windows, as well as an exterior, concrete-block chimney, which compromises integrity of materials and workmanship. The lack of integrity of design, materials, and workmanship culminates in the loss of integrity of association and feeling. Therefore, the Wetzel House does not contain sufficient integrity from the period of construction (circa 1818) to deem it eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is located on the north side of old Route 64, the Main Street of Chewsville. It is situated toward the east end of the village and faces south.

The structure is a three-bay, one-and-a-half story white weather boarded structure, presumably of log construction. A one-story wing extends to the rear of the house.

The walls rest on low fieldstone foundations and are sheathed with coved board siding. Windows appear to have been spaced evenly in the front elevation. They are trimmed with turn-of-the-century period pedimented architraves. First story openings contain two-over-two pane sashes while half-story windows at the second level have four-light casements.

The main entrance is located in the center bay of the front elevation and is similar in appearance to the windows. A one-bay, hipped roof entrance porch is present at the front elevation. It is supported by a pair of chamfered square posts with simplified brackets.

The roof is covered with sheet metal and extends beyond the end walls of the house. Plain boxing finishes the eaves. A modern concrete block exterior flue is located at the west gable end of the house.

The structure is in excellent condition and is located on a lot 50' X 200'.

The area of significance of this house is its architecture. It is also important for its supposed association with the Fitzhugh family, prominent early residents of Washington County who owned a large tract of land north of Chewsville.

As an example of a log building, this house is representative of a major architectural group in Washington County. Log was used as a building material in the area from the earliest days of settlement through the 19th century. Many of these log buildings remain in use today, sheathed by various forms of siding or bricks. The late 19th and early 20th century alterations are themselves significant, reflecting the then current means of transforming and updating the appearance of buildings.

This house and a neighboring structure, (WA-I-097), have been traditionally associated with the Fitzhugh family who owned hundreds of acres in the Chewsville area. The two small houses in Chewsville were said to have been secondary dwellings on the property. Colonel William Fitzhugh, a veteran of the American Revolution, came to Washington County late in the 18th century and resided at "The Hive" (WA-I-053) near Chewsville. In 1810, he moved to the Gennesee Valley of New York with Nathaniel Rochester and Major Charles Carrol. Nathaniel Rochester founded the city of Rochester, New York.
